The bark Kilauea arrived at Maho-

The Consuelo had been at sea several hours on Saturday, when the captain discovered water coming in at the stern near the rudder post, and fearing the cargo would be damaged put back to port. The captain says that the Consuelo was caulked when last at San Francisco, and while lying here he examined her and found some of the caulking was loose, she was then re-caulked and did not leak until she was at sea in rough water. It is supposed the leak is through a rat hold behind the rudder post. About 50 tons of freight will be taken out and the rudder unhinged. She will probably sail tomorrow.

The Lehua brings news of the schr.
Mile Morris running on to a ledge of
